

TheraPlate Ambassadors on the Podium- Kasey Perry-Glass & Adrienne Lyle Take Team Silver at CDIO5* Aachen

Aachen, Germany (July 24, 2018) – TheraPlate, the Official Therapy Plate of the US Equestrian Federation celebrates the success of team riders. TheraPlate Ambassadors Kasey Perry-Glass on Goerklintgaards Dublet and Adrienne Lyle on Salvino. Both riders represented the United States of America in the CDIO5* Nations Cup, helping to secure a team silver medal against top European rivals.

Both of these outstanding riders train with Olympian Debbie McDonald in Wellington, FL and benefit from Chef d'Equipe and U.S. Dressage Technical Advisor Robert Dover's expertise. McDonald, who will take over Dover's position beginning December 1, 2018, is also no stranger to the positive effects that daily use on the TheraPlate presents for top tier athletes. In the first day of competition Perry-Glass and "Dublet" received high marks for their clean and precise ride, scoring a 76.801 and placing them in the top five, teammate Lyle rode the Hanoverian stallion owned by Betsy Juliano to an outstanding 74.581 helping round out the teams lead over Germany in day one. Coming into day two Perry-Glass surpassed her highest marks to earn a 78.787 placing her third amongst very stiff competition. Lyle and Salvino stayed consistent and proving that they are a reliable team pairing earning another 74.511. To top off an incredible weekend of career bests, Perry-Glass and her Olympic partner pulled out all the stops in the Freestyle to earn an 85.205 to take second place to Isabell Werth, the number one ranked dressage rider in the world.

The team at TheraPlate is proud to have these incredible riders as ambassadors and to be able to help them and their horses achieve their very best along the way. In addition to their dressage rider's success, Show Jumping TheraPlate Ambassador Todd Minikus kept the home fires smoking with the $70,000 Ingles Grand Prix win this weekend at Tryon International.
